This invention

8.1	is ancient.
8.2	was first tested on animals.
8.3	was thought to be dangerous.
8.4	has made a big difference in one continent.

A

A simple design by British inventor Trevor Baylis is probably one of the world's most important inventions. In 1991 he invented a radio that doesn't have a battery. It has a handle that you turn by hand. He designed this 'wind-up radio' especially for parts of Africa where communication is difficult. Baylis has never made much money from his invention although it is now used all over Africa and has changed millions of lives.

B

The first 'flying machines' were hot air balloons. They were invented by two French brothers (the Montgolfier brothers). In 1783 a crowd of people, including the King, watched as a sheep, a duck and a cock became the first living things to fly. They went up to a height of 460 metres and landed safely. Nobody had been sure if they would be able to breathe. After the success of that test, the first human flight soon followed.

C

Of course, the wheel is one of the most important inventions of all time. It is more than five thousand years old, and it's hard to imagine life without it. Transport is a good example: people have travelled by wheel since at least 2000BC. The invention seems such a simple idea to us, it's amazing to think that the Aztecs managed just fine without it.

Zadanie 9 (3 punkty / _____)

Przeczytaj teksty 1 i 2. Uzupełnij luki 9.1–9.3 w emailu do Kate zgodnie z treścią tekstów. Luki należy uzupełnić w języku angielskim.

Tekst 1

In War for the Planet of the Apes, Caesar (played by Andy Serkis) and his apes are forced into a deadly conflict with an army of humans led by a hard-hearted Colonel (played by Woody Harrelson). Eventually, Caesar and the Colonel must fight with each other in an epic battle that will determine the fate of both their species and the future of the planet. But what a wonderful surprise to see how much this movie is centred on its characters and not only on the action (after all, there is a ‘war’ in the title), so it is also a film for intelligent drama lovers.

Let me know what you think.

Smallpox

In the early 18th century, smallpox was one of the biggest causes of death in Europe. The wife of the British ambassador to Turkey, Lady Montagu nearly died of the disease. She eventually got better but her brother wasn't so lucky. He didn't survive. While she was in Turkey, she discovered a way to stop the disease. Doctors there gave people a small amount of the disease. They did this so that their patients could then fight it. When Lady Montagu returned to England, she tried to tell people about the Turks' treatment of smallpox. People didn't listen to her, even doctors weren't interested. This was partly because she was a woman and partly because the idea was 'eastern'. However, her own doctor had seen how effective the Turk's treatment was. He wrote a scientific article on the subject and the idea soon became more popular. Fifty years later, a scientist, Edward Jenner, discovered an even safer and better treatment. It is his name we still remember today. Thanks to his work, the disease was brought under control. However, he couldn't have done it without Lady Montagu and, above all, the Turks.

- 10.1 Lady Montagu's brother _____ of smallpox.
 10.2 Lady Montagu found out that doctors in _____ know how to fight smallpox.
 10.3 She told people in England about the treatment, but only _____ listened to her.
 10.4 50 years later Edward Jenner made the treatment _____.
